

“Careers Day” Presentation

Now that you’ve learned the basics, it's time to show off your slideshow skills. For this assignment, you'll be giving a "Career Day" presentation about a job you find interesting. Whether you want to be an actor, a photographer, a journalist, a video game designer, or any other profession, this is your chance to dive deep and share what you've learned. Your presentation should consist of:

- An introduction to the career.
- The day-to-day activities involved.
- Required skills and qualifications.
- Pros and cons of the job.
- A conclusion slide about why this career appeals to you.

If you’ve never used PowerPoint or Google Slides before, this will be a great way to practice. Your presentation should have about 10 slides, including a “references” slide at the end for any information you cited. Explore slide designs, transitions, animations, and images, while also playing with fonts to make your information stand out.

Check out this video for some helpful tools. Share your finished presentation with hayden@neurodevmentoring.com.

Some tips:

- Use speaker notes to give yourself a script; don't just read off of your slides. Bullet points are usually better than long wordy paragraphs.
- Use high quality images that are relevant to your topic.
- Use visuals to help you convey information.
- Maintain a consistent font and color scheme throughout to keep things looking professional.