Python II Vocabulary Terms

Version Control - a system for managing changes to files and sharing those changes with other programmers. It is a powerful tool that allows a team of people to make changes to the same files in parallel. By far the most popular version control software is Git, developed by Linux developer Linus Torvalds.